Social and Cultural History: Letters and Diaries Online

Imagine seeing into the minds of tens of thousands of individuals and knowing the details of their lives within seconds. These personal and private writings allow today's reader to feel and understand what it was like to be a person of another time, race, ethnicity, or gender, making Social and Cultural History: Letters and Diaries Online the ideal starting point for historians, sociologists, genealogists, linguists, and psychologists who want to explore and analyze human experiences.

Brought together under a unified search interface is all the premium content from the following Alexander Street individual collections:

- North American Women's Letters and Diaries
- Manuscript Women's Letters and Diaries (from the American Antiquarian Society)
- British and Irish Women's Letters and Diaries
- The American Civil War: Letters and Diaries
- North American Immigrant Letters, Diaries, and Oral Histories
- Black Thought and Culture

As Alexander Street editors identify new letters and diaries, Letters and Diaries Online will continue to grow.

The project also links to, indexes, and makes cross searchable more than 700,000 full-text pages of oral histories from open-access Web resources around the world, hand-selected by Alexander Street editors for their value to researchers.

Letters and Diaries Online lets users search across all of this content—from each of the Alexander Street individual collections, all of the new letters and diaries as they are added, and the best oral history content available on the Web as identified by Alexander Street editors—using a single search interface. The cross-search orchestrates the search results into one unified results set.

Alexander Street's Semantic Indexing makes everything searchable together, including the free Web resources, for a consolidated search result. Searches like these are easy from a single screen:

- Find letters written by men fighting during the American Civil War, written in camp and sent home to their families.
- How do teachers in the South describe the influence of the U.S. Civil Rights movement on their students?
- How do letters written by women in the eighteenth century describe childbirth?
- How do letters about love written by women to other women differ from letters about love written by women to men?
- Find oral histories by black doctors and nurses on the subject of polio.
- Find interviews of World War II veterans born in Ohio discussing bombing missions.
